REDS SHOW SIGNS OF RECOVERY

Tokyo, May 11. Air reconnaissance today indiented that the Communists in Korea were beginning to recover from the disruption created in their forces a fortnight Observers thought they would attack again though not immediately. But the United Nations had in the interim drawn breath and concentrated their "killing power" again, they added.

The Fifth Air Force claimed 300 casualties among the Communist forces moving southwards today. Pilots reported that the Communists were stiffening their defences and troop concentrations were not regarded here as meaning that a threat of a renewed Communist offensive was imminent,

Enquiries Textile Products

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

London, May 11. Hongkong exhibitors at the British Industries Fair may be well satisfied with the business they have done at this year's Fair. Hundreds of enquiries have been made at their stand and valuable business connections made with buyers from all over the world. Cotton yarn, cotton piecegoods and other textiles have been in the greatest demand throughout the two weeks that the Fair has been open. The fact that the Earls Court section of the BIF this year is mainly devoted to showing British textiles has not taken any business away from the Colony. # Korea Offers Greater Risk Of War With Soviet Says Marshall

Washington, May 11. General George Marshall, the United States Secretary of Defence, said today that the risk of war with Russia because of the Korean situation was more acute than the risk taken by the United States in re-arming Europe. He told the Joint Senate Committee investigating Far East policy that the main difference between Europe and Asia was that "we have an issue there (in Korea) that is very critical to the Soviet Union in that they are now in complete accord with the Chinese Communist Government so far as we know, and they have a treaty of accord."

He added: "The situation as to the possible actions of the Soviet Government is a more acute one by far than in Western Europe because if they lose a close community of interests and co-operative arrangement with China at this time that would be a very great loss to them of something they now possess."

Asked why the United States Japan and contribute to her accepted a "calculated risk" in post-treaty security. hazards to pedestrians unless a proper pathway is constructed on the western side of Garden Road Provision of a footpath involves one of two things: either it is constructed at the expense of the existing width of the Garden Road motor highway, or the Cathedral surrenders a strip of its land for the purpose. It is suggested that the Cathedral grounds at this point could well afford to sacrifice a strip, five or six feet deep from where, the grounds adjoin the Volunteer Headquarters to the Garden Road entrance. A footpath on that side of road would enable pedestrians to congregate in safety while awaiting their turn to cross through the safety channel, and if constructed on part of the existing Cathedral grounds, would have the added advantage of not encroaching on the present width of the Garden Road motorway. Garden Road is a source of constant danger to pedestrians and to car drivers. It is a thoroughfare that is becoming increasingly busy and must be considered one of the major roads on the island directly connecting with the city levels. The children who have to make use of Garden Road particularly need protection and it is one that can easily be afforded them by the introduction of a safety right of way and the provision of a footpath between Volunteer Headquarters and the Cathedral grounds. It is an undertaking which we consider Government should study and put in hand without further delay. Meanwhile the posting of a traffic control policeman at a strategical point between Lower Albert Road and thoughtrance to the Cathedral grounds would be of temporary assistance in reducing the risks of accidents between pedestrians and vehicles.

Your Radio Listening For Next Week In Detail—A "China Mail" Feature

Radio Hongkong To Broadcast All Day On Whit Monday

On Whit Monday, Radio Hongkong will be on the air all day from 8 a.m. with the usual variety of holiday entertainment:-

With the demand by the Persian Parliament for the nationalisation of the country's oil supplies, the affairs and, in particular, the position of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company became matters significant Ball: so would to Little for the closest attention throughout the world. To understand the issues involved in an international controversy such as this it is necessary to get at the basic facts.

"Persian Oil," a recorded BBC feature, provides the listener with a brief history of the Persian Oil fields, and presents the necessary factual material in an expertly documented form. In order to achieve this the BBC has collected the views of a team of eight experts on Persian affairs.

"Persian Oll" was specially flown out to Radio Hongkong by air and it will be broadcast at 7.15 p.m. tomorrow evening, Sunday, May 13.

By arrangement with the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre Company, the radio version of "The Merchant of Venice" was broadcast by the BBC during the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford - on - Avon in 1948, and it is a pleasure to know that we will be able to hear the recording of this classic over Radio Hongkong at 4 p.m. on Monday afternoon.

The cast includes such well-known stage personalities as Diana Wynyard, as Portia, Paul Scofield as Bassanio and Esmond Knight as Gratiano. A particularly interesting piece of casting was that of Robert Helpmann as Shylock. Helpmann has been described as a ballet dancer who is a brilliant actor and an actor who is a brilliant ballet dancer, and it is a fact that there are few stage personalities who show so much versatility as this clever Australian.

Wong Kuk-ying's recital on Tuesday at 9.11 p.m. is devoted to one work - Schumann's Piano Sonata in F sharp minor op. 11. Schumann wrote three piano Sonatas, and this was the first to be published though not the first to be completed. It is a fine romantic work reflecting the young composer's love for Clara Wieck to whom the Sonata was dedicated, and who later became his wife.

The Schools' Quiz this week is to take place on Tuesday at 6.02 p.m. instead of the usual Monday owing to the Whitsun Holidays. This week the Diocesan Boys will be meeting their sisters of the Diocesan Girls School-and the competitive spirit *should run high!

1129 WPATHER REPORT GOD RAVE THE KING,

Curtain Call

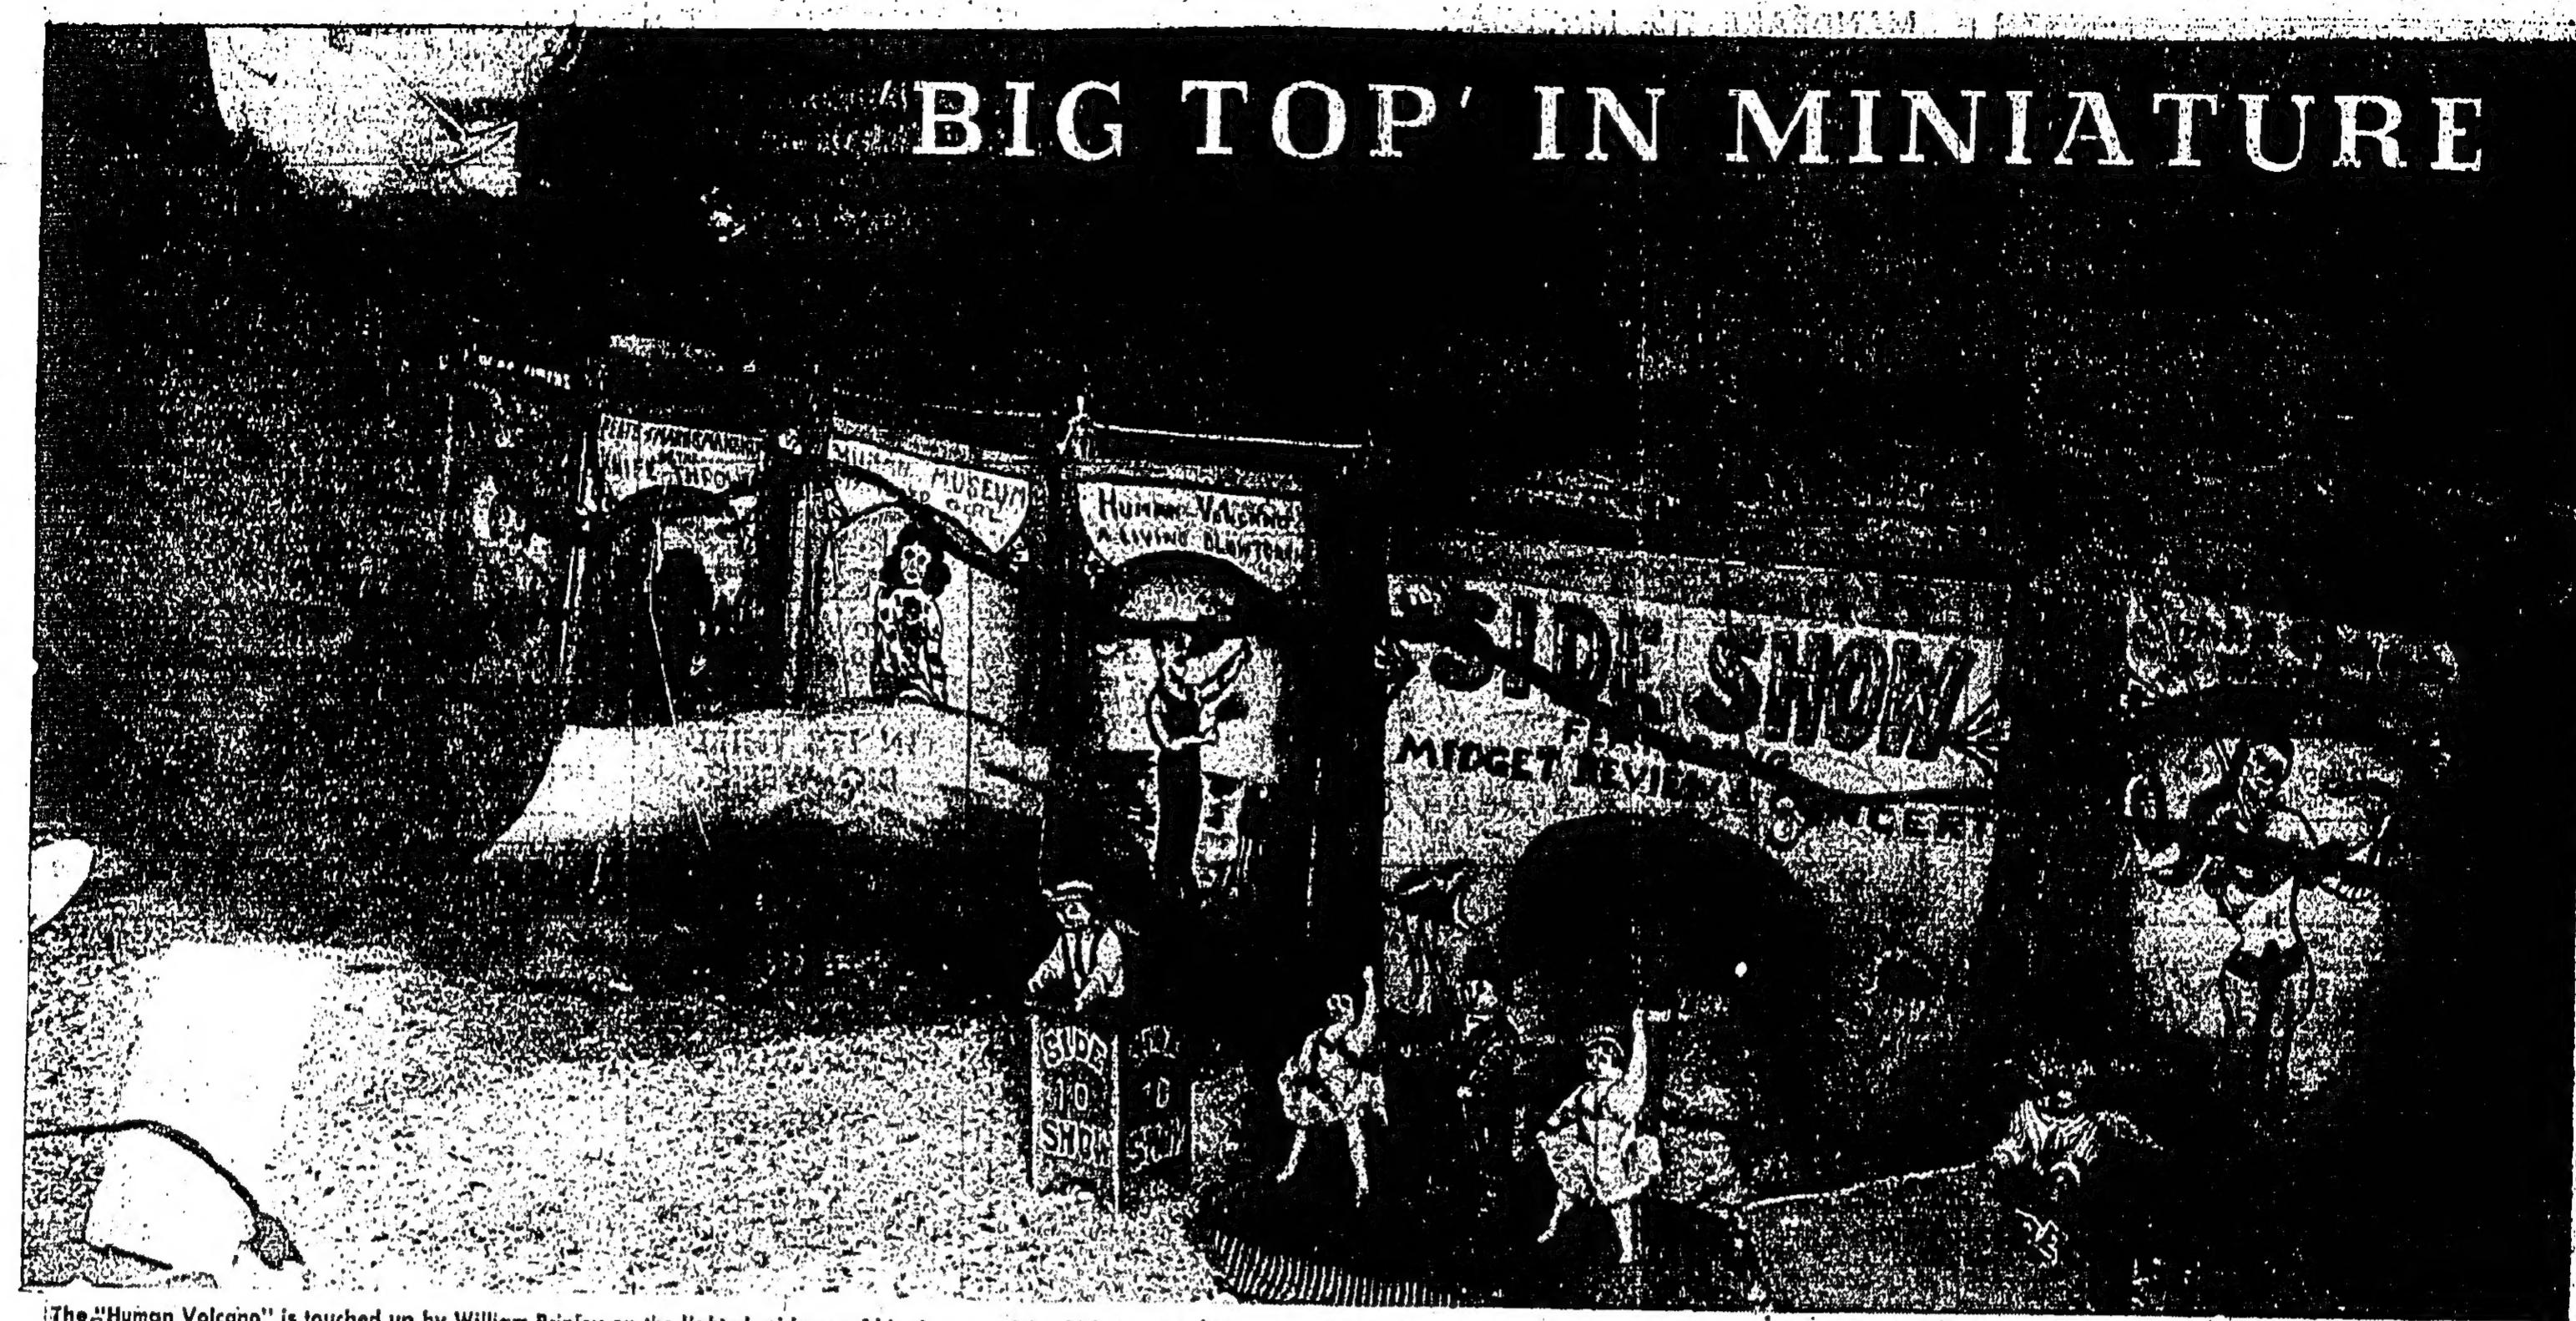

The "Human Volcano" is touched up by William Brinley on the lighted midway of his circus model, which took him 24 years to build. The attractions were carefully selected after checking those most often seen in the Big Tops travelling in American.

The Toy Bandwagon Carved by a Nine-Year-Old Youngster Has Now Grown Into a $100,000 Pint-Sized Model Circus

ANY young boys, at one gine or another, probably have wished they could run away from home and join the circus. William R. Brinley of Meriden. Conn., was one of those boys. At the age of nine, however, young William made his big decision. Instead of leaving home for the circus, he would bring the Big Top into his own parlour. The youngster found himself a piece of wood and began whittling.

Twenty-four years later, Brinley, now 33, has quit his job as shipping elect to assume a full-time career as ereator and showman. His circus—in miniature—now has more than 500,000 separate parts, including 163 enimals, 46 wagons, 15 tents, 80 performers and countless back—stage workers. Sawdust on the floor and electric lights lend an air of realism to the display.

The model is built on a scale of three-quarters of an inch to a foot, from cookhouse to side show, from ant-enter to elephant. On the road, all sections fold up for packing into wagons, which are loaded on 16 flatears of a miniature railroad, brightly painted.

The lilliputian circus covers about 400 square feet. When Brinley takes it on the road, he and two assistants spend an entire day taking it down and two days setting it up on arrival.

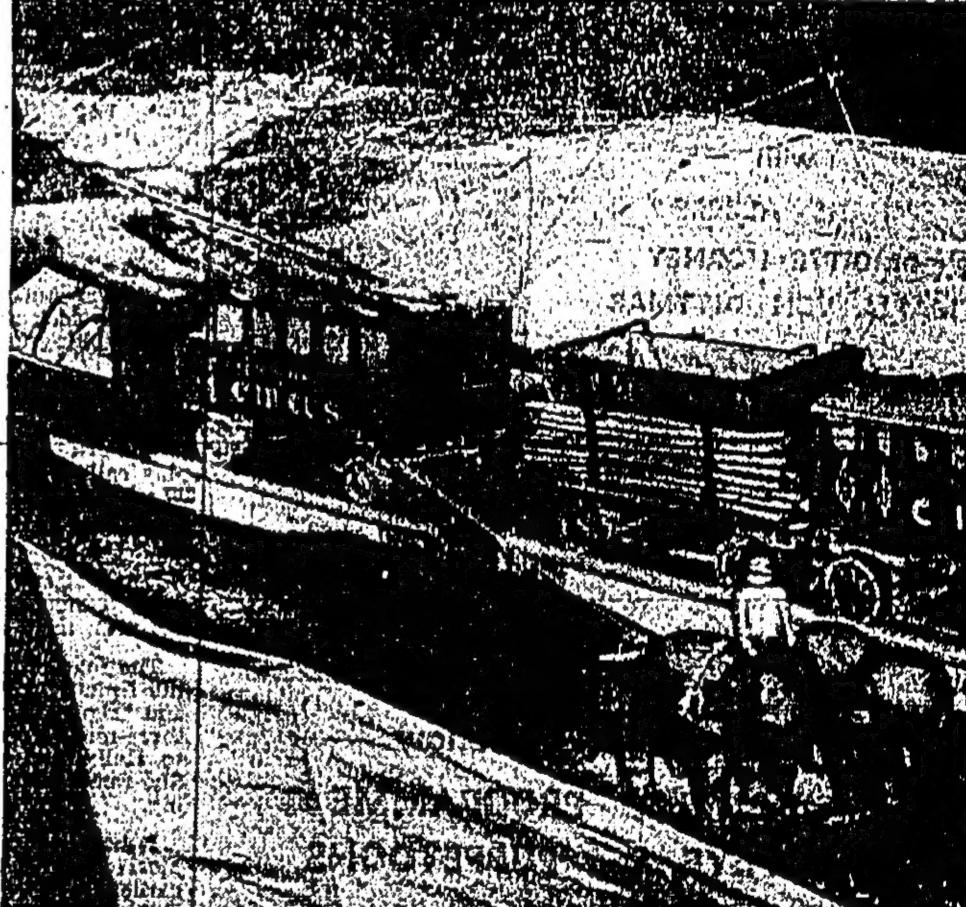

But the man who whittled year after year-never has forgotten the little boy's dream. Proceeds of a coast-to-coast tour Brinley is making with his $100,000 show will be banked towards the day when he can buy a real live circus.

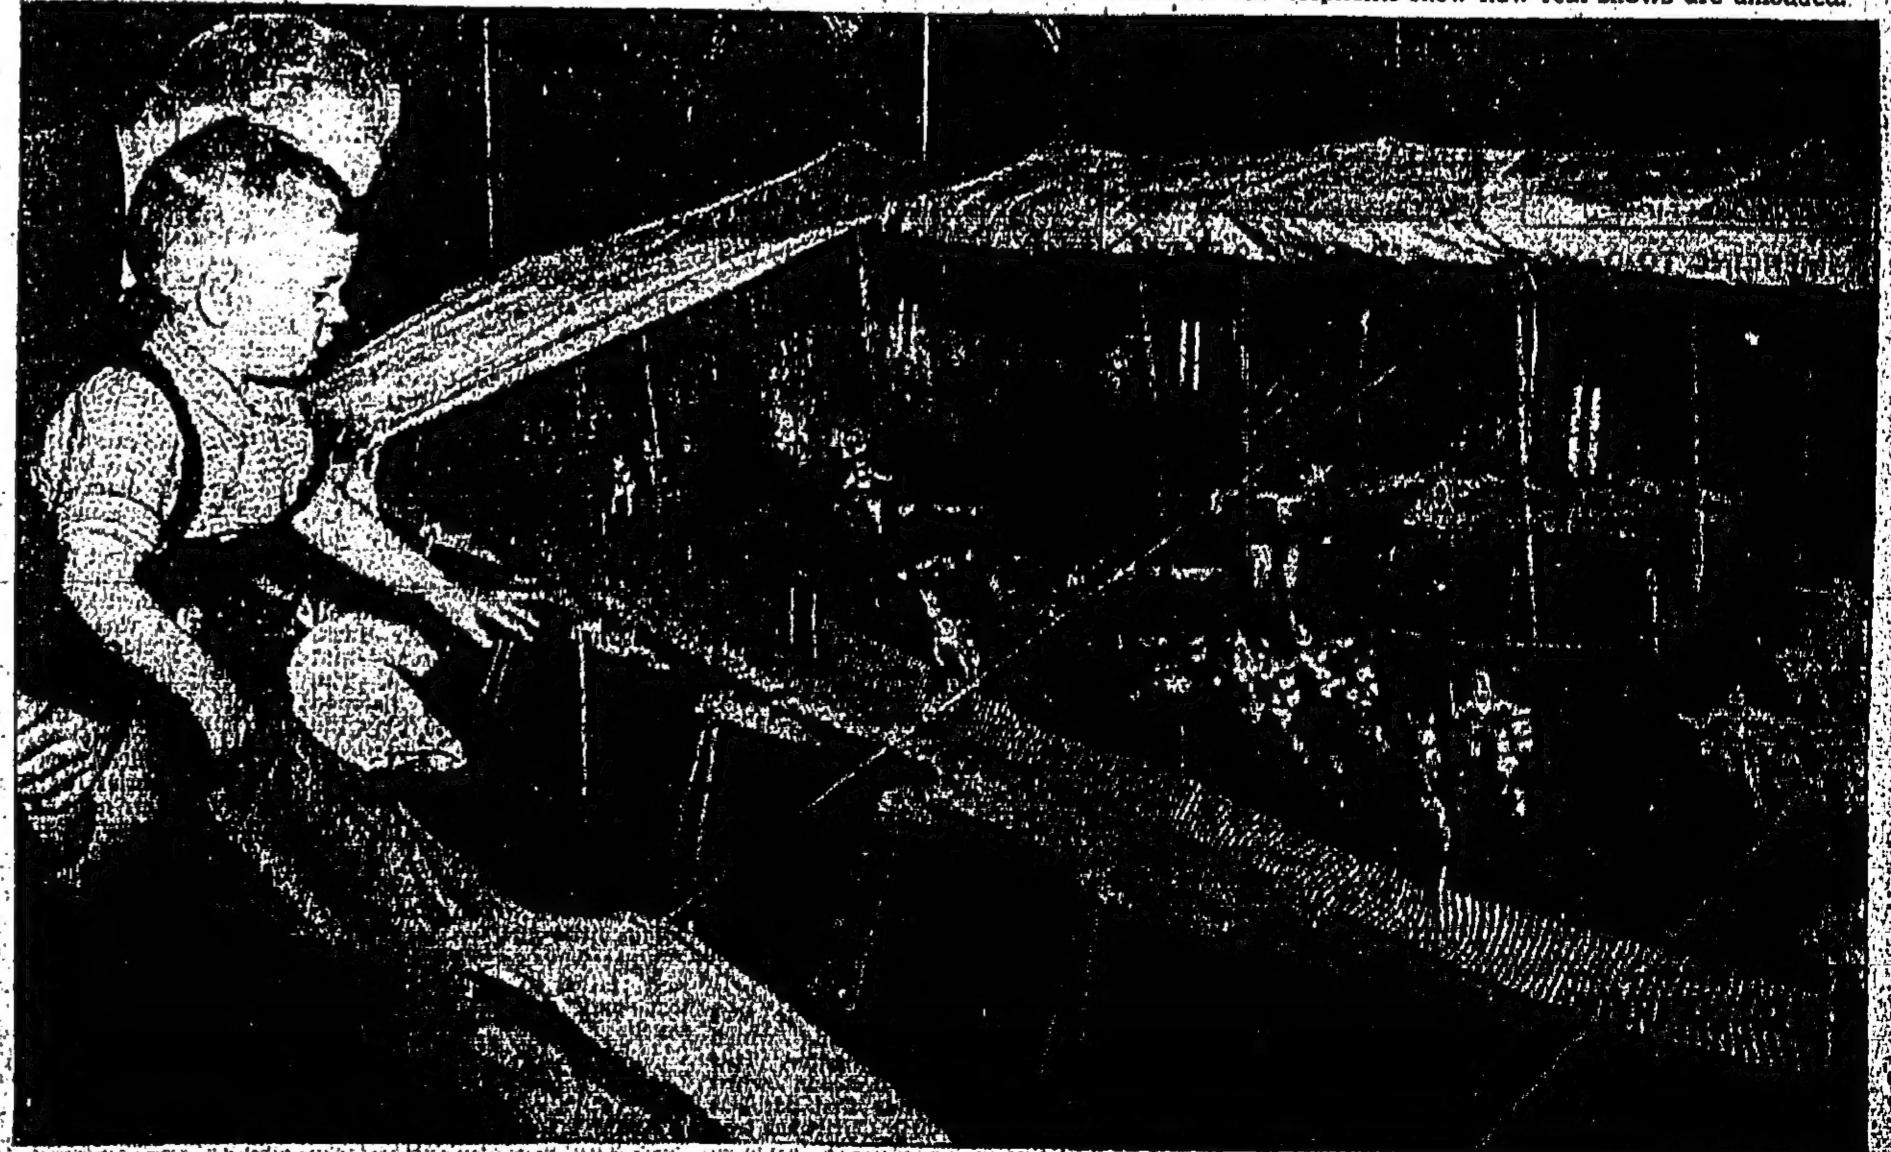

THE CIRCUS tonts are made of fine canivas, all hand-sewn. Brinley is shown working on side show arons. In the far background is the Big. Top. In foreground is the tent where enimals are stabled.

THE LATEST addition to Brinley's circus is painted after months of

But it was through another door one of them eventually brought the Stone. From a doonway a few yards nearer the road one of my colleagues appeared with part of the Stone-it-was in two pieces when the men drew it from underneath the Coronation towards this doorway and he placed it in the rear seat and covered it over with a brown travelling rug. He returned to the Abbey for the other portion and I reversed the car to its original position.

A POLICEMAN! I WAS PETRIFIED

He had scarcely gone when I saw a policeman appearing at the end of the drive. I was petrified.

At any moment the boys might appear with the second portion of the Stone and come into full view.

This was the most crucial moment for me. I knew If I lost my head now the whole scheme would fall through. I heard one of the men returning, so I moved the car so that it would block the officer's view of the Abbey door. My friend stepped through this door into the car to explain that they would be some time with the other piece. I pointed out that there was a policeman standing at the top of the drive looking down.

PRETENDED WE -WERE COURTING

The policemen apparently thought it was worth investigating and walked up the driveway towards us. In these few minutes before he reached us, we decided to play the part of a courting couple and snuggled up to each other.

From ARTHUR JACOBS: New York,

TAOR the first time New York's stately Metropolitan P Opera House became a cinema. "The Tales of Hoff-mann," the British film starring red-headed Sadler's Wells ballerina Moira Shearer, had a gala premiere in aid of the Red Cross.

Equipment worth more than £10,000 was installed in the 68-year-old theatre for the show, which raised about £8,700.

Nearly 6,000 people were there, including Ludmilla Tchering, the other ballering star of the film.

There, too, was co-producer Emeric Pressburger. He was wondering if the film will make the intended triple appeal to film, ballet, and opera enthusiasts. That would be a tale almost as extravagant and fasch sting as any of Hoff-on Hoffmann, based on Offenbach's opera, would not be out till later. Then the commercial run of the film begins. "Red Shoes," Moira Shearer's only previous film, netted more money in the United States than any other British film, The producers have staked heavily on Shearer, Leonide Massine, Robert Helpmann, and Ludmilla Teherina, the ballet stars of this film and also of "Red Shoes."

Hostmann is a poet, and his stories are of his three former loves Olympia, the doll, Giulicita, the courtesan, and Antonia, the singer. All their qualifies are now united for him in his present love, Stella.

Two roles

Shearer dances the roles of Stella and Olympia, mouthing Olympia's music while the British soprano Derothy Bond sings it. Helpmann copes in turn with the miming of the stery's four villains.

Hoffmann, himself, is neted and sung by America's 32-year-old Robert Roundeville. It is his first film. I have seen him in this note on the stage in New York. He is good.

CHIEF P makes a beer barrel hammock for the garden

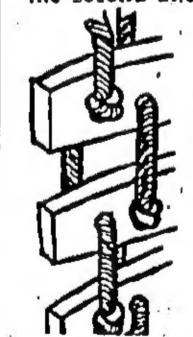

THERE was a broken barrel full of old flower pots in my shed. Now there is a COMFORTABLE HAMMOCK swinging between the two trees at the bottom of the garden and I am waiting for the heat wave.

To link the curved staves, I used at each side two medium thick ropes, threaded and knotted over and under. The holes-required for a medium rope need not be big enough to weaken the staves and a single thick rope would be difficult to knot

The holes I bored were %in, in diameter, but they depend on the thickness of the rope. The next step was to bore two holes at the end of each stave; the first was lin, from the end and the second another inch along.

-And mattress

Starting at one end, leaving a good length of rope to fix to the tree, I knotted above and below the first stave, then, threading it up through the second stave, fixed it in position with a second knot.

Then, marking off 12ins, from the last knot, I threaded down through one stave then up through the next—tied the knot, marked off the. next, and so on to the end,

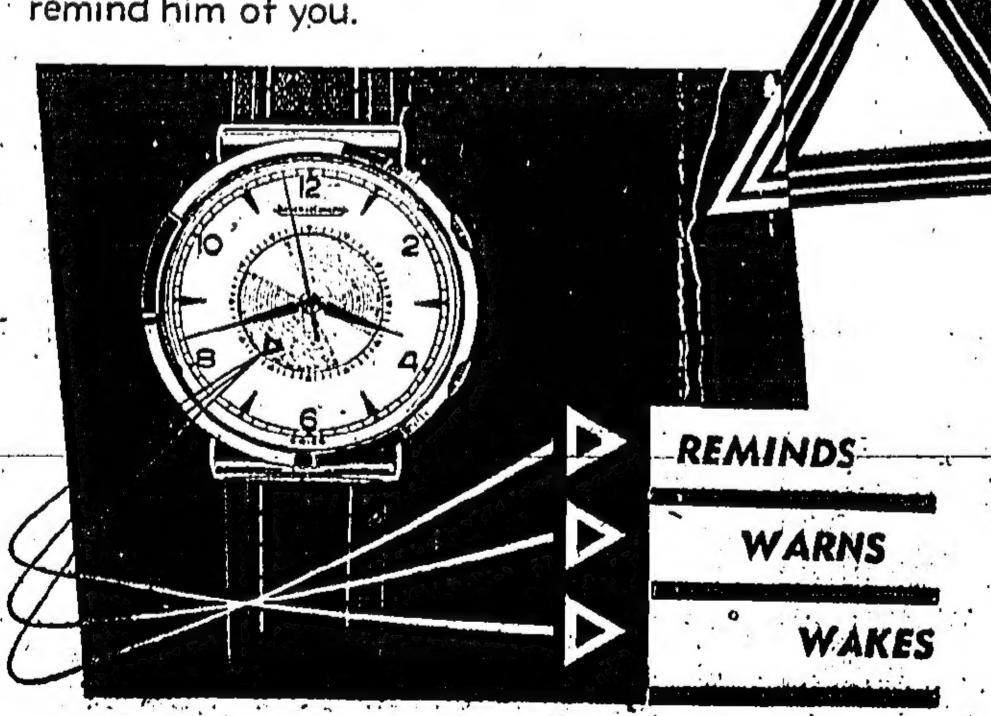

I use a thin pad mattress on my hammock, but it is left out of the drawing to show the construction.

Because of this, countless ways exist of translating each situation to film.

Thus while certain general rules hold good for making interesting, pleasing pictures, the point of view of the individual makes for variation within their framework, as in the snaps reproduced here. Similar though these may be in subject there is little sameness to them.

Both, to be sure, are wellcomposed shots, correctly exposed, sharply focused. But there similarity ends. For in the one picture a low camera angle was used while in , the other a high camera angle was

DREAM MEANS:

In this escapist dream, you are torn between the demands of convention and your own desire to enjoy and indulge yourself.

Your desire to meet the demands of society is symbolised by your remaining dressed in the water and by your riding in a public carriage. The fish and the mice in the water represent your escapist desires and subconscious fantasies. In the first part of the dream, the fish are nibbling away the clothes which represent the personality you present to the public: they are trying to uncover the real, primitive, selfish you.

In the second part, the subconscious wins as represented by the mice which keep coming out of the plug hole into the water. Your being fully dressed in the bath indicates that you still feel the pull of society, though you are disinclined to do anything about it.

Your dilemma is whether you should bother about what people think or just enjoy yourself. I leave you to sort out for yourself how to strike that balance.

The Breeding and Pedigrees

Of British Race Horses

FRENCH BLOOD AIDS BRITISH REVIVAL

By NIGEL GEE

This final survey of British breeding is a miscellanyof lines, either foreign blood which is represented in Britain or sires who are the survivors of once powerful families. It covers amongst others the Djebel line of Tourbillon, which is virtually a monopoly of the French breeder M. Boussac, the imported strains of Bois Roussel and My Love, the dispersed and quiescent line of Son-in-Law and the single strand of Orby held by Panorama.

Tourbillon, on whom the success of M. Boussae is chiefly founded, won the French Derby. He got Caracalla II, who won the Grand Prix de Paris, the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe and the Ascot Gold Cup, and Goya, sire of the Oaks winner Asmena, but his greatest son is Djebel.

YOUR BIRTHDAY .... STELLA

SATURDAY, MAY 12

TF you are born today, you are the intellectual type. You must always have a fund of new ideas to work with or life will become very dull. You live in a world of ideas and unless you can make use of them, you are unhappy. Consequently, you should select a life work which is in some field which compels your full attention. Without that, you are restless and will only work hate-heartedly. Literature and the arts appeal to you and you are also deeply interested in the psychic and the occult. You may wish to do some investigating in this sphere. You have a magnetic personality and will have a host of friends. You women make excellent hostessen, but you want the conversation to be interesting!

You men are interested in politics and show definite talent along this line. You will never be a machine politician, however, for you need to go your own way in your own fashion. You must lead others; never follow.

You are much too generous ever to become wealthy. But you will probably live comfortably at all times. Whenever you have a little more than you need, you will find someone with ambition who needs help. You would make a wonderful patron of the arist Deeply enotional, you need a life partner who is willing to devote a let of time and effort helping you fulfil your ambitions! Such a marriage can inspire you to reach the heights.

Valuable Clues Lie in Bidding

By OSWALD JACOBY

THE clue to the correct play often lies in the bidding. It is helpful to put yourself in an opponent's place and discover why he bid (or passed) as he

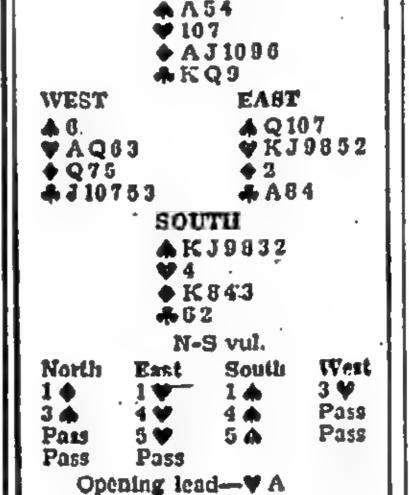

When today's hand was actually played for example, South ruffed the second round of hearts and then had to plan the play of the hand so as not to lose to the queen of spades or to the queen of diamonds. The clue was found in the

The defenders had bid up to the level of five with somewhal less than half of the high cards in the deck Obviously, both opponents had good distribution, so the trumps were not going to break 2-2. The best chance to avoid the loss of a trump trick, therefore, was to finesie through East for the queen of trumps.

On this reasoning, declarer led a trump to dummy's ace and took a finesse on the way back, winning with the jack. The king of spade; then drew the last trump.

Having cleared the first hurdle successfully. South now needed to play the diamonds without love, the first played three rounds of clubs, giving East his ace in the process three rounds of clubs merely confirmed what South had expected all along.

East had six black cards (at least) and had bid and rebid hearts very vigorously. All the evidence pointed to a singleton diamond and a six-card heart suit, Hence South began the diamonds by cosling the king and then finessed through West

South therefore made his contract by disregarding a rule that most average players follow religiously. The Lycrage player will try to drop a queen (rather than finesse for it) if only four cards in the suit are missing. In this care South was faced by two such situations and finessed in both suits.

VALARD Sense

q-With both sides vulnerable you deal and bid one diamond. Your partner blds one spade. The opponents pass-throughout. You hold: Spades A-J-3, Tlearts-Q-4, Diamonds-K-Q-9-5-2, Clubs K-6-4, What do

A-Bid two spades: You have little more than a minimum opening bid, to you cannot make a strong rebld. The raise best expresses your values since you have good support for spades and a side doubleton.

COMMENT OF THE DAY

correspondent recently drew atten-

It ion to the unsatisfactory facilities for pedestrians in Garden Road just below the Peak tram terminus.

The point was well taken. The lower end of Garden Road serves as an important highway for children attending St. Paul's and St. Joseph's colleges as well as the Kennedy

Road junior school and the military school. It is also used by hundreds of commuters between the mid and upper levels and the city. In short; that particular part of Garden Road is not only a motor highway, but a pedestrian thoroughfare. Yet it caters quite inadequately for the pedestrian. A pathway exists on only one side of the road-and-this,-of-narrow-dimensions._

And, apart from the Queen's Road entrance, it possesses no pedestrian right of way lane, nor are any traffic control policemen on duty except at the junction of Upper Albert Road and Kennedy Road and at the foot of the hill. Most' of the pedestrian traffic crosses Garden Road from and into the grounds of St. John's Cathedral, but .

a safety lane at this point would not be ideal because it would directly connect with the entrance to the Headquarters Command road—a thoroughfare perpetually receiving and disgorging army lorries and other vehicles. The most effective traffic control.

point would be situated between the footpath involves one of two things:

either it is constructed at the expense of the existing width of the Garden

Road motor highway, or the Cathedral surrenders a strip of its land for the purpose. It is suggested that the Cathedral grounds at this point could well afford to sacrifice a strip, five or six feet deep from where the grounds adjoin the Volunteer Headquarters to the Garden Road entrance. A footpath on that side of road would enable pedestrians to congregate in safety while awaiting their turn to cross through the safety channel, and if constructed on ...part of the existing Cathedral grounds, would have the added advantage of not encroaching on the present-width of the Garden Road motorway. Garden Road is a source of constant danger to pedestrians and to car drivers. It is a thoroughfare that is becoming increasingly busy and-must be considered one of the major roads on the island directly connecting with the city levels... The children who have to make use of Garden Road particularly need protection and it is one that can easily be afforded them by the introduction of a safety right of way and the provision of a footpath between Volunteer . Headquarters : and the Cathedral grounds. It is an undertaking which we consider Government should study and put in hand without further delay. Meanwhile the posting of a traffic control policeman at . a strategical point between Lower- Albert Road and the entrance to the Cathedral grounds would be of temporary assistance in reducing the risks of accidents between pedestrians and

vohicles:

London, May 11 Insurance rates on shipping between Canton and Manchuria were increased tenfold today by the Inatitute of London Underwriters.

Asked whether ' the increase was inspired by fear of new international developments in the area, spokesman would say only that it was decided on because of "related circumstances".

He declined to say whether he referred to the ban on rubber exports to Red China announced by Britain fast night,

ONE-MAN CENSURE MOTION

Accuses Shawcross

London, May 11. Mr Raymond Blackburn, an Independent Member of Parliament and a persistent critic of the Government's China trade policy, gave notice today of a one-man censure motion on the President of the Board of Trade, Sir Hartley Shawcross.

He is asking the House of Commons to censure him for "complacency and conceit" in claiming that Britain had given the world a lead in cestricting exports of rubber to China.

In fact, Mr Blackburn asserted in his motion, British exports of rubber to China and Hongkong - most Hongkong's rubber exports go to Chinawere over 9,000 tons, worth £5,000,000, in April. This was more than twice the amount for the first six United States Embassy months of 1950, he said. Yet Sir . Hartley Shawcross had stated_that_rubber_exports_had been controlled. In yesterday's debate on supplies to China, Sir Hartley Shawcross denied eimilar charges by Mr Blackburn. Government is not obliged to find time to discuss a motion put down by only one Member. If it does not, Mr Blackburn has an opportunity to raise the subject in a debate on May 30.

This will be ofter the normal Parliamentary business on a motion for the edjournment when private Members have a choice of subjects for debate .--Reuter. __

DERBY CASH SWEEP DRAW Lucky Numbers

Exactly 1,382,000 tickets were sold for the Special Cash Sweep on the Hongkong Derby, the draw for which was held at the Race Course at 11.30 o'clock today. There were 87 entries.

The first prize is worth $626,877; the second prize $179,107; and the third prize $89,554. Other ponies will receive $7,107 each.

The Hongkong Derby— the sixth race — is scheduled to be run at 4.45 p.m. today. Considerable interest is focussed on the probable winner and both Norseman and London 17 have been tipped to win the classic event. The first number that was drawn this morning was 1123925 on Norseman and if this is any criterion for luck, it would appear to be an extremely good omen for the pony. London 17 was dr

Radio Hongkong To Broadcast All Day On Whit Monday

'On Whit Monday, Radio Hongkong will be on ] the air all day from 8 a.m. with the usual variety of holiday entertainment:—

To understand the issues involved in an international controversy such as this it is necessary to get at the basic facts.

"Persian Oil," a recorded BBC feature, provides the listener with a brief history of the Persian Oil fields, and presents the necessary factual material in an expertly documented form. In order to achieve this the BBC has collected the views of a team of eight experts on Persian affairs.

"Persian Oil" was specially flown out to Radio Hongkong by air and it will be broadcast at 7.15 p.m. tomorrow evening, Sunday, May 13.

By arrangement with the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre Company, the radio version of "The Merchant of Venice" was broadcast by the BBC during the Shakespeare Festival at Stratford - on - Avon in 1948, and it is a pleasure to know that we will be able to hear the recording of this classic over Radio Hongkong at 4 p.m. on Monday afternoon.

The cast includes such well-known stage personalities as Diana Wynyard, as Portia, Paul Scofield as Bassanio and Esmond Knight as Gratiano. A particularly interesting piece of casting was that of Robert Helpmann as Shylock. Helpmann has been described as a ballet dancer who is a brilliant actor and an actor who is a brilliant ballet dancer, and it is a fact that there are few stage personalities who show so much versatility as this clever Australian.

Wong Kuk-ying's recital on Tuesday at 9.11 p.m. is devoted to one work - Schumann's Piano Sonata in F sharp minor op. 11. Schumann wrote three piano Sonatas, and this was the first to be published though not the first to be completed. It is a fine romantic work reflecting the young composer's love for Clara Wieck to whom the Sonata was dedicated, and who later became his wife.

The Schools' Quiz this week is to take place on Tuesday at 6.02 p.m. instead of the usual Monday owing to the Whitsun Holidays. This week the Diocesan Boys will be meeting their sisters of the Diocesan Girls School—and the competitive spirit should run high!

10.15 THE HUMAN BODY.

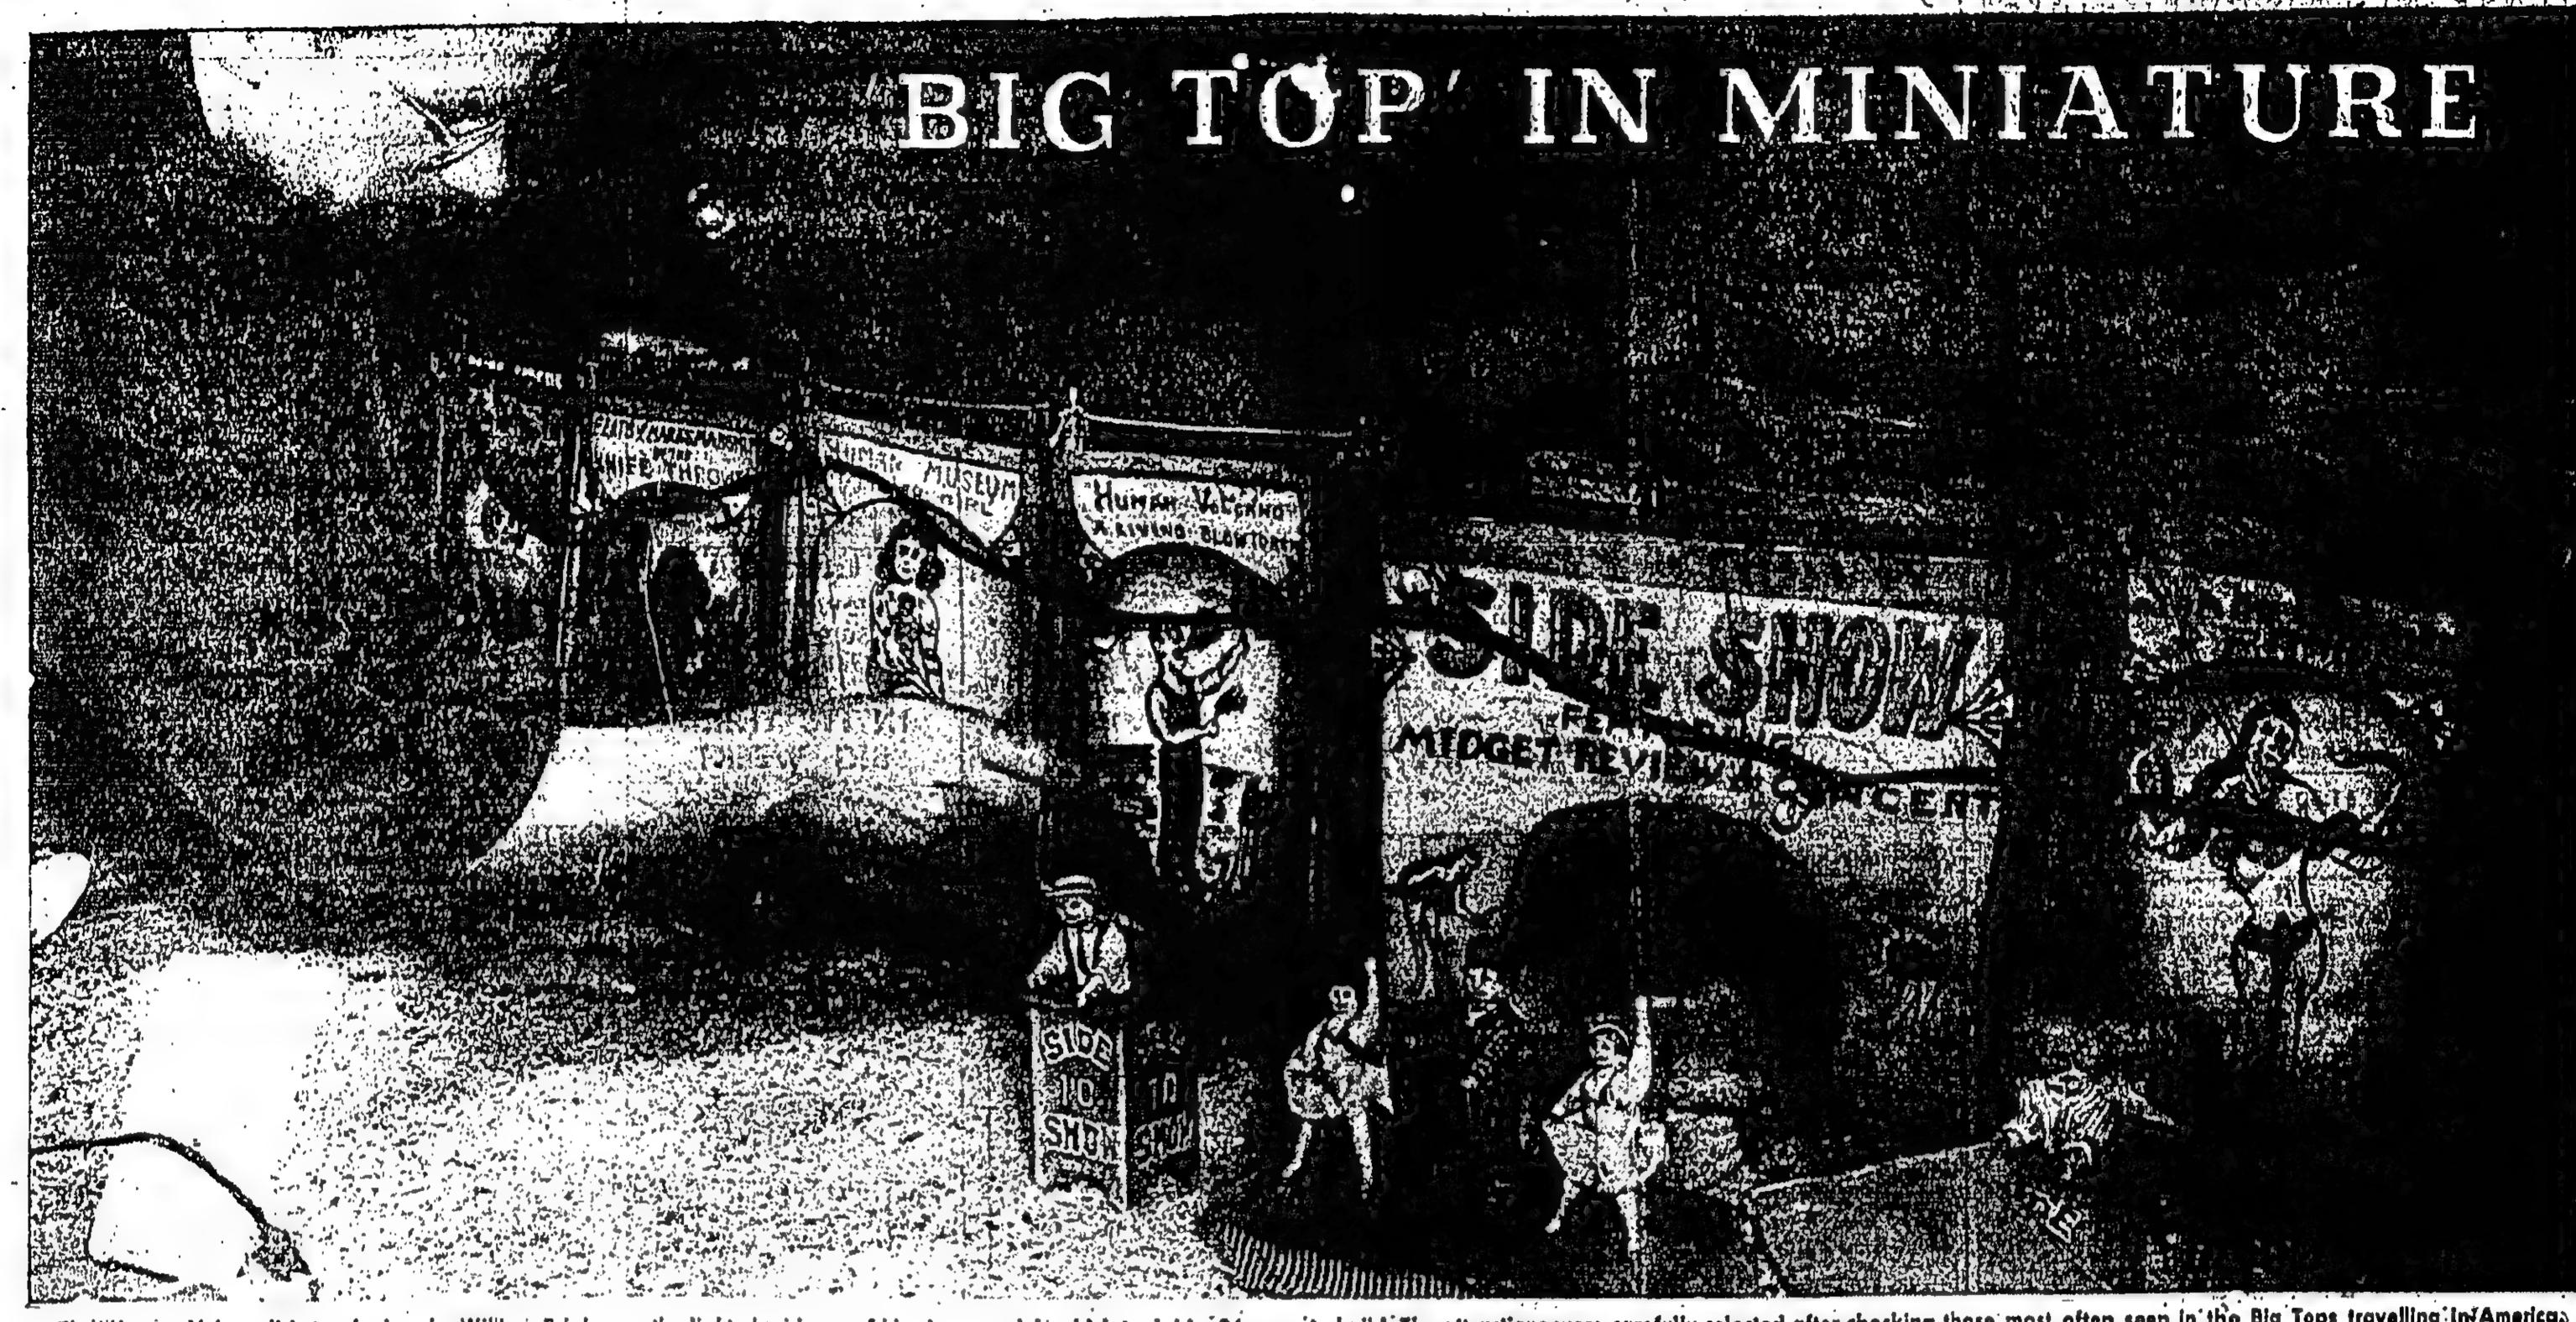

The Human Volcano" is touched up by William Brinley on the lighted midway of his circus model, which took him 24 years to build. The attractions were carefully selected after checking those most often seen in the Big Tops travelling in American.

The Toy Bandwagon Carved by a Nine-Year-Old Youngster Has Now Grown Into a $100,000 Pint-Sized; Model Circus

ANY young boys, at one time or another, probably have wished they could run away from home and join the circus. William R. Brinley of Meriden, Conn., was one of those boys. At the age of nine, however, young William made his big decision. Instead of leaving home for the circus, he would bring the Big Top into his own parlour. The youngster found himself a piece of wood and began whichling.

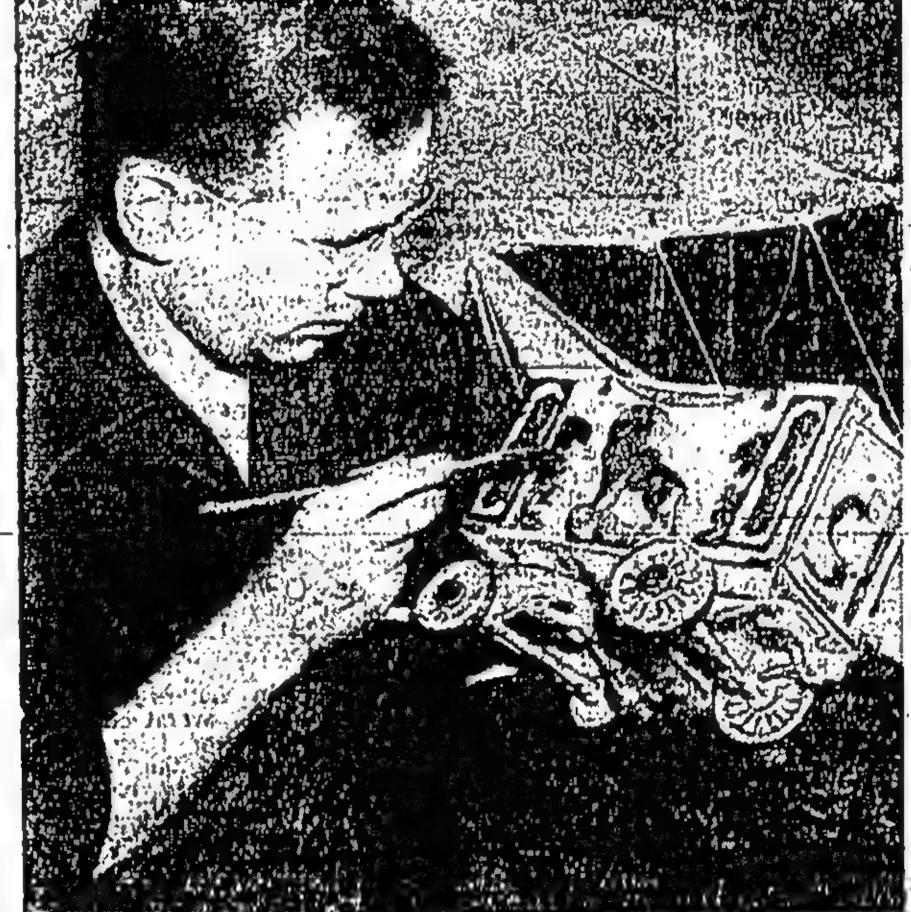

Twenly-four years later, Brinley, now 33, has quit his job as shipping clerk to assume a full-time career as creator and showman. His circus—in miniature—now has more than 500,000 separate parts, including 163 animals, 46 wagons, 15 tents, 60 performers and countless back—stage workers. Sawdur, on the floor and electric lights lend an air of realism to the display.

The model is built on a scale of three-quarters of an inch to a fool, from cookhouse to side show, from ant-eater to elephant. On the road, all sections fold up for packing into wagons, which are loaded on 16 flatears of a miniature railroad, brightly painted.

The lillipution circus covers about 100 square feet. When Brinley takes it on the road, he and two assistants spend an entire day taking it down and two days setting it up on arrival. But the man who whittled year after year never has forgotten the little boy's dream. Pro-

It began with eleven world-shaking words..... "Wait a minute, wait a minute; you ain't heard nothing yet."

They were spoken by Al Jolson in the second reel of a film called "The Jazz Singer." It was the first talkie. It was 1928.

Two years later, in Berlin, von Sternberg was finishing a film titled "Blue" Angel" with a star called Marlene Dietrich. In Paris, Rene Clair was making "Sous Les Toits de Paris."

In Hollywood, the film city was watching the fadeout of the stars of the silent screen. Studios were discovering that actresses who made big money in the silents were "not suitable" for the talkies. TINDER the soft lights of the ballroom, the couple chatted earnestly across a table. It was an evening in mid-December, and Glasgow University, undergraduates were celebrating Daft Friday at the traditional ball in the Students' ·Union.

At last the girl rose and with her companion joined the dancers on the floor. In these few moments she had entered the plot to remove the Stone of Destiny from Westminster Abbey.

It was the start of an exploit that was to set the world laughing and wondering, that swept war and UNO from the front pages of newspapers in every language and set Scotland Yard on one of their most intensive man hunts.

The girl-petite and dark-who joined the conspirators that night-the only woman in the group of four-was 22-year-old Kay Matheson. A native of Inverasdale-tiny village in remote Wester Ross-she went to Glasgow to study and later to teach domestic science in city schools.

Quietly, almost demurely, with a smile on her lips, she tells of the invitation to danger that came to her that night of the ball.....

A POLICEMANI I WAS PETRIFIED

He had scarcely gone when I saw a policeman appearing at the end of the drive. I was petrified.

At any moment the boys might appear with the second portion of the Stone and come into full view.

This was the most crucial moment for mel. I knew if I lost my head now the whole scheme would fall through. I heard one of the men returning, so I moved the car so that it would block the officer's view of the Abbey door. My friend stepped through this door into the car to explain that they would be some time with the other piece, I pointed out that there was a policeman standing at the top of the drive looking down.

WERE COURTING

The policemen apparently thought it was worth investigating and walked up the driveway towards us. In these fow minutes before he reached us, we decided to play the part of a courting couple and snuggled up to each other.

The policeman told, us we were in a private roadway and could not park there. We told him we knew, but privacy was

That was our story. The policeman was sympathetic but insisted that we could not remain there. We were terrifled that at any moment the other two might stumble out with the other bit of the precious Stone.

Then there was a dull thump from inside the Abbey. I think I stopped breathing.

It seemed that now discovery was certain, but to our amazement and relief the officer just grinned and said: "Night watchman seems to have fallen down the stairs."

We kept talking to us for about ten minutes and montioned that only the previous week he had found a car just there, and in the back seat were

I could feel the Stone concealed below the travelling rug almost boring into my back. He actually looked into our bable seat, but saw nothing to arouse his suspicions.

Instead, he escorted us to the other parking place—the very spot where the other car was lying. Once the policeman was out of sight we scrambled out.

But part of photography's fascination lies in the fact that there is no single way of making a picture which can be called the right way, excluding all others. Each camera-user, expert or amateur, reacts to each picture situation in his own personal terms. Because of this countless ways exist of translating each situation to film.

Thus while certain general rules hold good for making interesting, pleasing pictures, the point of view of the individual makes for variation within their framework, as in the snaps reproduced here. Similar though these may be in subject there is little sameness to them.

Both, to be sure, are wellcomposed shots, correctly, 'exposed, sharply focused. But similarity ends. For in the one picture a low camera was used while in , the other a high camera angle was

In this escapist dream, you are torn between the demands of convention and your own desire to enjoy and indulge yourself.

Your desire to meet the demands of society is symbolised by your remaining dressed in the water and by your riding in a public carriage. The fish and the mice in the water represent your escapist desires and subconscious fantasies. In the first part of the dream, the fish are nibbling away the clothes which represent the personality you present to the public: they are trying to uncover the real, primitive, selfish you. In the second part, the subconscious wins as represented by the mice which keep coming out of the plug hole into the water. This final survey of British breeding is a miscellany of lines, either foreign blood which is represented in Britain or sires who are the survivors of once powerful families. It covers amongst others the Djebel line of Tourbillon, which is virtually a monopoly of the French breeder M. Boussac, the imported strains of Bois Roussel and My Love, the dispersed and quiescent line of Son-in-Law and the single strand of Orby held by Panorama.

Tourbillon, on whom the success of M. Boussac is chiefly founded, won the French Derby, He got Caracalla II, who won the Grand Prix de Paris, the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe and the Ascot Gold Cup, and Goya, sire of the Oaks winner Asmena, but his greatest son is Djebel.

MOUTH-WATE RING LEGEND.

66TF a man-I care not if he be a belted earl—has not the good sense to come to his meals-" The cook pursed her lips and glared angrily at the table in the castle dining hall.

Roast, pudding, ple-nothing had been tasted. And it was not the first time either. The Earl could not spare the time to eat. The Scottish nobleman had invented a new and fascinating game. With a crook-handled cane he spent the day trying to hit a little white ball into 18 different holes in the green turf of the eastle grounds. He liked the new game of golf so much he would not waste an hour of daylight eating.

YOUR BERTHDAY

SATURDAY, MAY 12

IF you are born today, you are the intellectual type. You must always have a fund of new ideas to work with or life will become very dull. You live in a world of ideas and unless you can make use of them, you are unhappy. Consequently, you should select a life work which is in some field which compols your full attention. Without that, you are restless and will only work half-

Literature and the arts appeal to you and you are also deeply interested in the psychic and the occult. You may wish to do some investigating in this sphere. You have a magnetic personality and will have a most of friends. You women make excellent hosteness, but you want the conversation to be interesting!

You men are interested in politics and show definite talent along this line. You will never be a machine politician, however, for you need to go your own way in your own fashion. You must lead others; never follow.

You are much too generous ever to become wealthy. But you will probably live comfortably at all times. Whenever you have a little more than you need, you will find someone with ambition who needs help. You would make a wonderful patron of the arts! Deeply emotional, you need a life partner who is willing to devote a lot of time and effort helping you fulfil your ambitions! Such a marriage can inspire you to reach the heights. To find what the stars have in store for tumorrow, select your birthday star and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

IF you are born today, you have limitless ambitions, but you are so gentle, kindly and sympathetic few realise how much personal success can mean to you. Since you are understanding of others, and give them encouragement, they in turn help you and aid in your eventual success. This co-operation is a valuable asset. Outwardly, you seem gay, lighthearted and almost aimless. You for from one thing to another-apparently without too much thought. But you plways are getting ahead! Those who are envious, seem to think it is luck. What they don't know, is that you have a careful plan of operation in mind, and everything you do, in some way, furthers that innermost aim. Your emotions are strong; your imagination keen; and your perceptions sharp. You may have a bost of acquaintances but you make very few really intimate friends. To those, you show a deep and life-long loyalty. Most of your friends are chosen for their intellectual qualities. When it comes to seeking a life partner, be guided similarly in your choice. You might be temporarily fascinated by beauty or charm, but you would easily tire of this unless your mate had as keen a mind as your own. Of course, the combination of the qualities would be perfection. You might be able to find it! # Valuable Clues Lie in Bidding

THE clue to the correct play often lies in the bidding. It is helpful to put yourself in an opponent's place and discover why he bid (or passed) as he

When today's hand was actually played for example, South ruffed the second round of hearts and then had to plan the play of the hand so as not to lose to the queen of spades or to the queen of diamonds. The clue was found in the

Civilian Needs Take Back Seat

Washington, May 11. Officials said here that more than half the record United States steel output might be set aside for defence in July and still more in August,

This would mean a 15 per cent greater inroad for defence into steel supplies of vital material and a consequent reduction in the steet available for civilian goods.

Further, cuts could be expected in cars, refrigerators and other consumer goods, the production of which is already about 20 per cent less than last year's.—Reuter.

Pakistan's

Karachi, May 11. Pakistan and Ceylon tonight concluded an 18-month trade agreement by which Pakistan's rice, flour and subsidiary foodstuffs will be exchanged for Ceylon's rubber, copra and cocoanut oil.

. The agreement, which is subject to ratification, expires at the end of 1952. It envisages a volume trade of 120,000,000 rupees, it was officially announced. Pakistan will also export to Ceylon chilies, sports goods, diesel engines, electric buibs, soda ash and sulphuric acid in return for certain essential per, other spices and graphite. A Conservative, Mr John The official announcement
